

Vice Chancellor for Information Technology Services

Minnesota
STATE COLLEGES
& UNIVERSITIES

The Minnesota State Colleges and Universities system announces a national search for a vice chancellor for information technology services. Serving on Chancellor James H. McCormick's executive cabinet, the vice chancellor is the system's senior spokesperson and administrator for information technology policy leadership and its chief information officer. The vice chancellor is a member of the system's leadership council and will represent ITS to the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities Board of Trustees and the state legislature.

Minnesota State Colleges and Universities is composed of 32 technical and community colleges and state universities and employs more than 19,000 people across the state. The system serves nearly 390,000 students each year in credit and noncredit courses. The vice chancellor is based at the Office of the Chancellor in St. Paul, Minnesota. More information about the system and the information technology services division can be found at www.mnscu.edu or www.its.mnscu.edu

Candidates should possess extensive and progressive information technology leadership experience with the ability to work with a diverse constituency. This professional should bring a proven capacity to understand a very complex organization and be successful in a system environment. An advanced degree in a related field is required.

The Chancellor's office has appointed a search committee and retained Harris/IIC Partners to assist in recruitment; appointment is anticipated mid-January 2010.

For optimal consideration, please contact Jeffrey Harris (contact information below) to confidentially request detailed information about the position and submit resumes, nominations or referrals with a cover letter by November 20.
